British Hero In Cemetery At Iowa Falls

(The Register's Iowa News Service)

IOWA FALLS, IA. — Ellis H. Cutting, reputed to be the last survivor of the British "charge of the Light Brigade" — immortalized by Alfred Lord Tennyson's poem of that title — died in 1924 and is buried in Union Cemetery here.

Cutting, buried beside his wife, Bessie, was born in CUTTING, Norwich, England. He joined the British army at 16, and was standing close to Lord Raglan, commander of British forces, when Raglan ordered the famous charge during the British and French war with Russia in the Crimea on Oct. 25, 1854.

A total of 607 Light Cavalrymen charged down a valley straight at the Russian artillery. Only 198 survived the charge which has been called "one of the most heroic and useless episodes in British military history."

Cutting, only 17 at the time of the charge, emigrated to the United States in 1871 and lived in Waterloo, Iowa Falls, and Cedar Rapids. He was a railroad engineer for many years. He died at Cedar Rapids Dec. 8, 1924.

1852 Hardin Cemetery About Forgotten?

By WILMA BLOSCH
(Correspondent)

STEAMBOAT ROCK — Hardin County's oldest cemetery is tucked away so far from the road that probably few of the county's younger residents know of its existence.

It is located northwest of Steamboat Rock in a wooded pasture. The only mark of difference from the surrounding area are a few ragged pine trees to be seen from the road.

INSIDE THE once-fenced enclosure wild blackberry bushes entwine the old tombstone and rocks used as headstones. This is known as the Kidwiler Cemetery.

Buried in the oldtime cemetery is 7-year-old Rachel Kidwiler, daughter of Jacob Kidwiler. The girl was the first person known to die in Hardin County.

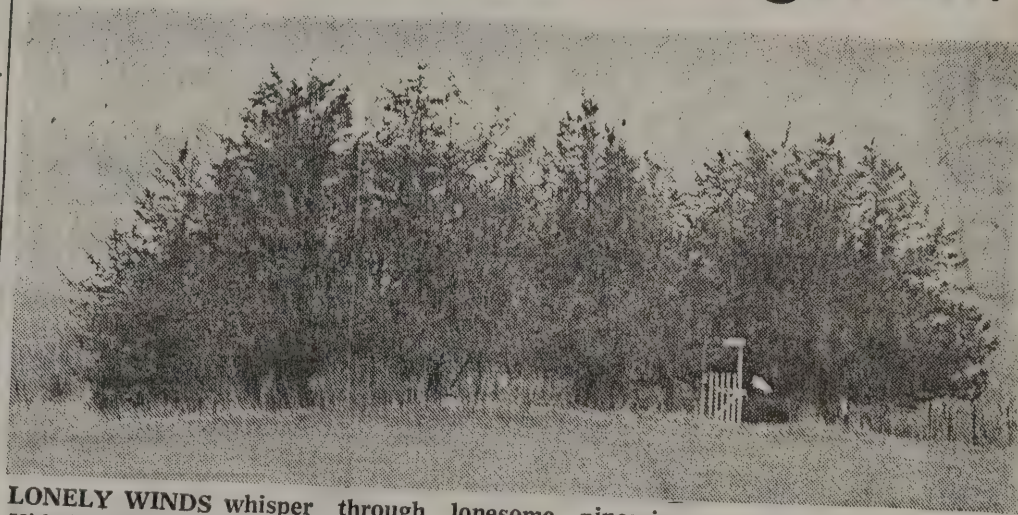

She was buried in 1852. Her walnut coffin was fashioned out of an old wagon box.

There are reportedly 20 graves in the Kidwiler Cemetery—some unmarked. The markers are corroded by the many years of all kinds of weather and are almost illegible.

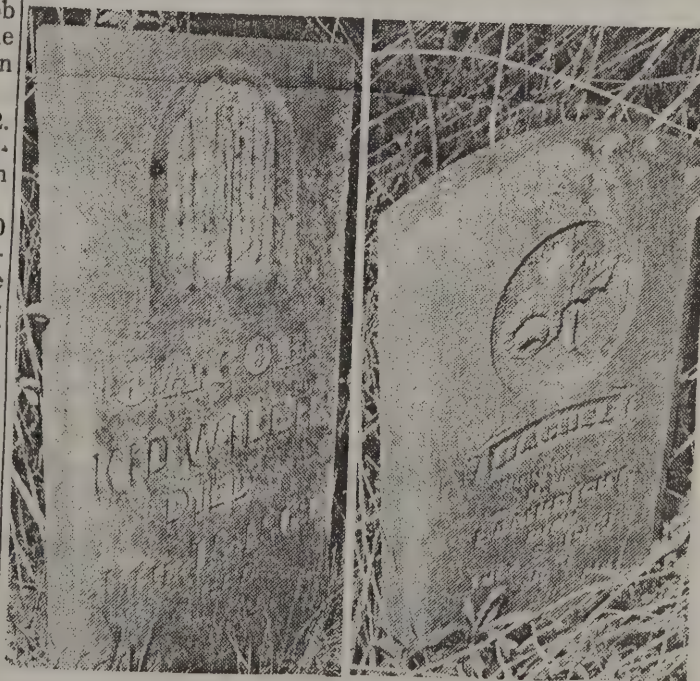

SOME OF the markers which can be read are Jacob Kidwiler, 1863, Jane Kidwiler and Rachel, Jacob Lambright, Rachel Lambright, William Riley, John Potts, Samuel Livengood and the last name, Reddinger.

Here in its desolate forgotten burial place lies the beginning of Hardin County history.

Jacob Kidwiler, his wife and 10 children, Adam Crim and Frances Mitchell came to Hardin County in 1850, being the first settlers in northern Hardin County. They came by wagon from Crawfordsville, Ind., and settled in the Eagle City area.

LONELY WINDS whisper through lonesome pines in Kidwiler Cemetery, trees which perhaps form shadows of memories of early Hardin County settlers. Two of the still legible grave markers below—Jacob Kidwiler and Rachel Lambright, both dated 1863—are surrounded by wild foliage. (Staff Photos)

Dickinson, James

James Dickerson born 1820 in Orange Co. Indiana was ^{the} one I wished. He was married three times.

First wife was Ellen Schofield. She died in 1858

according to newspaper accounts I have.

On April 15, 1851 he married Malissa (or Milissa) Alaway. She must have died in 1856 (not 1896) accounts show that she died "after about five years in Ceredo Geo. County." Moved there from another county, ^{Clayton} ^{Delaware}

On June 7, 1861 he married Anna Williams. She may not have died in Iowa as they "spent several years in Tennessee in the interior of her native" articles show". Data from Mrs Lott ^{Do} Fawkes 323 So. 50th St Omaha, Neb. July, 1939
